S. WebPartner FAQ's

- What type of access does the Web front end require to access the SQL Server?

Read and write access, however we do not write directly to any SAP tables. Data is processed by our MIPS Processor which is flag driven as to how often to sync with the SAP database.

- What Credentials are required?

SQL server username and password. They are encrypted in the web.config file which IIS does not allow to be accessed remotely.

- Will the Web Site access the SAP SQL server directly or will it access an intermediate server?

The Web Site does not access the SAP database. It accesses a WebPartner database which can be on a different system. WebPartner will access the SAP database only for real time reporting.

- Will the Web Site write directly to tables in the SAP database?

No. The SAP database is synchronized from the WebPartner database at specified times using our MIPS processor (see question 1).

- How are you preventing attacks to the system?

IIS controls all of the security of the website.

- What about SQL injection?

SQL statements are never built directly from any user input.

- Is there a validate code to prevent botnet attacks?

Yes. CAPTCHA

- How are user sign on and account credentials maintained for people placing orders?

All account information is stored in the WebPartner database upon creation. You would need to manually link any user to the Business Partner within the SAP database.

- What type of manual process do you expect or envision, to link Business Partners with user sign-ups?

When an order is placed, it would be synced to the database as a Sales Order Draft or as an actual Sales Order. At that point, the user reviewing the order would have the option of adding the contact to the Business Partner.

- Are you able to limit users to different processes? i.e. orders with limits, samples only, catalog requests etc.?

Yes. This is in the early stage of our Development process.

- Is User sign-on and passwords handled as a self-service or do they require authentication and validation at startup and through routine maintenance?

No authorization is needed. CAPTCHA can be used to prevent bot created accounts.

S. WebPartner FAQ's (continued)

- What type of information is being gathered and maintained on visitors to the Web Site?
Email address, password, shipping info, billing info, credit card info. The credit card is encrypted or it can be setup to be deleted once an order is processed.
- Is the information gathered stored in log files or a database table?
Database tables.
- Is the information gathered accessible to follow-up on system issues that may occur?
Yes. Any data that is collected would be accessible.
- Will WebPartner run on IIS 7.0?
We currently fully support IIS 6.0. IIS 7.0 is in the early stage of our testing and we do not expect any major issues.
- Should the MIPS process be running on separate server than our primary SAP SQL server for security reasons?
No.
